

Who are the customers of your science?

Please join us to learn more about the upcoming I-Corps South Spring Regional Training on Bioinnovation & Commercialization

Designed for busy biomedical scientists and engineers, this free three-week program, which kicks off June 6 is for teams of two-to-four people who are interested in commercializing research. Based on the Lean Startup Method championed by the National Science Foundation's I-Corp program, this training is also useful for grant writing and study design.
